BUTCHERS REQUEST COUNCIL ACTION ON CLOSING OF SHOPS

The City Council met Monday evening, with Mayor H. H. Smith presiding after two weeks of much needed rest in the mountains.

A petition was received from the Butchers' Union of San Mateo county, asking the Council to adopt an ordinance compelling all butcher shops in Daly City to remain closed on Sundays and holidays. A committee from the organization was instructed to be present next Monday evening and explain this matter in detail.

A communication was received from the Daly City Merchants' Association, stating that they had pledged $250 as their portion for the advertising of Daly City in the campaign that has been started by the San Francisco Examiner.

The Merchants' Association asked the Council to urge the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to continue the night trouble wagon in our district, as this had added much good to the service in the past.

The city of San Mateo asked the City Council to be present at a meeting of the San Mateo board and discuss a uniform building code for all cities of San Mateo county.

The Pacific Gas and Electric Company asked permission to move a pole on Mission street. This being to help the new Daly City Theatre, the request was granted.

The water committee reported the moving of several fire hydrants that are not on the curb line, to their proper positions, when the water department can spare the time.

As a special order of business, the request from Goldie's Tire Shop, on Mission street, between Hillcrest Drive and Bepler street, asking the Council to space off a section in the parking zone for their business of changing tires, was denied by the Council.

This was discussed both for and against by merchants and property owners, and as the members of the Council expressed their views that our streets and highways should always remain public property, each member voted for the denial of the request.

After salaries and bills for the month had been ordered paid, the Council adjourned.

DALY CITY VETERAN FIREMEN'S OUTING

The Veteran Firemen of Daly City held their basket picnic and family outing on Sunday May 27, at Stevens Creek, Santa Clara county, and from all reports the outing proved a decided success in every way.

The machines left Hillcrest Drive and Mission street about 9 o'clock in the morning, and the parade was escorted by Chief of Police Jack Doyle as far as the city limits, when Director A. J. Bodien took charge. The machines arrived in good time at the picnic grounds, and preparations for lunch were made immediately.

Edward Ford was the camp cook. He can be considered just as careful a cook as he is a driver.

After lunch, young and old enjoyed themselves at dancing, swimming or boating. After 2 p m. the big races took place. Director A. J. Bodien acted as starter, while Henry Lorenz and Julius Twesten were the judges. The awards were made to the different winners by John Matzek and Director F. W. Schmidt.

The following were the winners of the main races:

CHURCH WILL PRESENT STEREOPTICON PICTURES

A special treat is in store for those who attend the evening service at the Daly City Methodist church. Stereopticon pictures have been secured of "Famous American Shrines." Historic spots dear to the hearts of all Americans. We are sure that you will enjoy this set of pictures, and urge your attendance Sunday evening.

A delightful and inspiring service was held last Sunday evening when a number of the graduating class of the Jefferson Union high school were present, at the invitation of the pastor, to hear his sermon on "Pictures Ahead." A few sentences from the sermon: "It is necessary to catch a vision of that particular thing in which you are going to give your life to, if you are to lead a successful life. The everlasting lure of life is the picture ahead. Life is seen in what a man lives for and then what he dies for. The vital thing in any position is its total relationship to humanity."

J. H. Tupper wrote this inspiring poem, which is entitled "Daily Morning Prayer."

Dear Lord in Heaven, to Thee we pray,
As now we face another day,
With all it holds of joy and tears;
Renew our faith, dispel our fears.

May we, Oh Lord, during the day,
Another help along the way,
And strengthen us to overcome
All selfish thought of kindness done.

We do not ask to be relieved
From any duty of this day,
But only for the power to do
Thy every will, we pray.

Our Father in Heaven, help us to be Faithful in our ministry;
Throughout this day which Thou hast sent,
With all it brings, make us content.

Now help us each and every one,
To do Thy will till this day's done.
Bring us safely to its close
And another night of sweet repose.

ELLIOTT L. FISHER, Pastor.

RETIRED PHYSICIAN DIES AFTER TAKING POISONOUS POTION

A coroner's jury has decided that Dr. Dozier T. Bentley, who died at the Stewart Hotel, San Francisco, on Thursday of last week, died from the effects of cyanide poison, taken with suicidal intent.

Dr. Bentley, who was well known in Daly City, was found to be seriously ill when his son, Alva Bentley, called at the hotel Wednesday evening. Young Bentley immediately called a physician, and every effort was made to save the life of the stricken man, who was unconscious when the doctor arrived.

Dr. Bentley's wife died in Daly City about a year ago, and it is known that he grieved over her death until his health was shattered. It is believed that grieving over the passing of Mrs. Bentley led to his decision to end his life. Mrs. Bentley was well known in musical and social circles in Daly City, and had a host of friends in this community.

Dr. Bentley, reported to be wealthy, had retired from active practice.

At the inquest three witnesses were examined, Alva Bentley, the physician's son, Dr. Charles Schwartz, the attending doctor, and Dr. Henry Thompson, the house physician.

From the testimony given by these three, it was was decided that Dr. Bentley had taken the poison with suicidal intent. The son testifed that his father was in ill health, had been grieving over the loss of his wife, and had written him a note in which he declared that he did not expect to live long.

LOCAL LIONS SPONSOR DANCE FOR BENEFIT OF BOY SCOUTS

Those who attended the dance last Saturday evening at the Jefferson Union high school auditorium, given by the Daly City Lions Club, not only aided in raising funds for a most worthy cause, the Boy Scout movement, but participated in an evening of genuine enjoyment.

While the commodious auditorium was not overly crowded, there was a goodly gathering of residents of this district, and some from San Francisco, a friendly, neighborly crowd that seemed to enjoy to the utmost the evening of dancing.

The music was furnished by the high school orchestra, their jazzy selections being appreciated by the dancers, while the floor committee saw to it that no one lacked for a partner.

The committee in charge of the dance reports the sale of a large number of tickets to citizens who were not represented at the dance, and while their presence would no doubt have added to the gayety of the occasion, they alone are losers for not being present. It's an understood fact that the dances given by the Lions are always worth while.

As a result of the Saturday night dance a considerable sum was realized, which will be devoted to Boy Scout activities.

DALY CITY BASEBALL TEAM WINS CONTEST WITH COLMA

In a practice game played Sunday at the Jefferson Union high school grounds, the Daly City baseball team defeated Colma by the score of 12-6. This was the first of several practice games to be played to select a strong team to represent Daly City against all semi-pro teams. The batteries for last Sunday's game were: Daly City, Hawley and Prebula, pitchers, Mendelson and Strand, catchers; Colma, Schindler and Zippoer.

Any Daly City or Colma player who would like to make the team should show up for practice at the high school grounds on Sundays, as it is hoped to form a creditable team of local players if possible. Mendelson, catcher for the Daly City team, proved to be a star in his first time out.

GIVEN SURPRISE SHOWER

Miss Freda Christen was guest of honor at a surprise miscellaneons shower, last Friday evening, given by the drill team of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181, Native Daughters of the Golden West, at the home of Mrs. Raymond Grandona, 500 Templeton avenue. The table was beautifully decorated in pink and white crepe paper. A centerpiece of roses, pansies and sweet peas, with a kwepie doll dressed as a bride in the center, was very attractive. Miss Christen received many lovely gifts. Those present were: Miss Elsie Fahy, Miss Margie O'Connor, Mrs. Christine Hume, Miss Ella Martini, Miss Tessie O'Connor, Miss Mary Nolan, Mrs. Lorraine Wall, Miss Caroline Spani, Miss Edna Boyle and Miss Alice Mathais.

SHOULDN'T LAUGH AT 'PERSONALS PAGE,' SAYS NOTED WRITER

Pages of "personals" in local newspapers are nothing to be laughed at by cynical city journalists. They represent, in their own community, the same basic interest for which all newspaper or magazine readers crave and fundamentally that interest is universally the same.

This was the message delivered to the annual convention of the National Editorial Association at Memphis, Tenn., by Merle Crowell, editor of The Ameican Magazine.

"The major thrills of life aren't many," declared Mr. Crowell, "and so we have to pile up the minor thrills whenever we can. One of the minor thrills always comes from knowing any local happening while it's still news. And, as far as that goes, it doesn't make much difference if we know all the facts already. I have seen thousands of people pouring out of the Polo grounds or the Yankee Stadium after a double-header baseball game, and most of them buying and reading eagerly the baseball extras that merely chronicled play by play the first game of the double-header which they had just seen with their own eyes. Of course when we're reading our local paper there is always a chance that we may see our own names or the names of some of our relatives or intimate friends. And that's a thrill that never grows old.

"My conviction is," continued Mr. Crowell, "that mentally we are all pretty much alike in our fundamental tastes whether we live in North Newport, Maine, or in Park Avenue, New York City. By that I don't mean that the people of North Newport and the people of Park Avenue read exactly the same things any more than they wear exactly the same things. Overalls and dinner coats are both useful garments, but they are not interchangeable. Their fundamental purpose, however, is to conceal the human frame with the maximum of satisfaction to the wearer—a purpose in which, if you ask me, overalls win by a wide margin. But when it comes to motivation and basic interest, people's post office addresses are the least important thing about them. The same wheels and cogs make them tic-tock whether their mail is delivered by a gold-braided hall boy or by a R. F. D. man chugging laboriously through three feet of spring mud.

"All human beings are ego-centric. They are not half as much interested in you and your ideas as they are in themselves and their own ideas. That's why good listeners are so popular. People like to read about the experiences of human beings anywhere, provided they can translate these experiences into terms of their own daily life, the work and their recreations."

Mr. Crowell cited an occasion upon which he asked the readers of his magazine to tell what they liked about it and the answers, which came from people of all ages, employers and employees, and persons of every condition and circumstance, he found that almost all of them had used the same three words, "information," "inspiration," and "entertainment."

"I am inclined," he told the convention members, "to believe that these same three words cover the basic desires that make people turn to any kind of reading matter, whether it be a book, a national magazine or a local weekly newspaper. In the case of the newspaper, information comes first. You are fortunate, indeed, in serving those who, for the most part live in small enough communities so that the word 'neighbor' hasn't gone out of fashion. In our rural reaches every man, woman and child is interested in knowing what every other man, woman and child is doing.

"The late John M. Siddall, who gave me the groundwork of most of the things I know about serving the public in print, declared that the only thing that interests all human beings always, is the human being himself.

"'Newspapers,' he said, 'are read widely because the individual reader sees himself constantly in the paper. I do not mean that he sees his own name. I mean that he reads about things happening to individuals which might happen to him, and he keeps comparing himself with what he reads.'

"Community weekly papers have enormous circulation in proportion to the population they reach. It is not uncommon for half or three-quarters of the people of a little town to take the village paper. The reason is obvious—the community paper is personal to its readers. Its columns are almost like a private letter from a member of the family. If a New York newspaper could get that close to its readers it could have three million circulation.

A newspaper or a magazine is a service—just as the telephone or the electric light is a service," said Mr. Crowell. "Sometimes a man may not use it very much, just as he may not use very much the telephone hanging on the wall or sitting on the living room table. But he likes to know it is there, just as he likes to know the telephone is there. Even if his business keeps him so tied up that he can't find time to read, or he has sickness or other troubles to occupy his time and mind, he will pick up the newspaper or magazine occasionally and look it over. And when he looks it over he likes to get the impression that is is full of good stuff, up-to-date and lively stuff that he could apply to himself or talk about to his neighbors if he only had the time to do it.

"I have never had the idea that an editor is ordained by God to try to make his readers over into the mold he thinks they ought to be in. Neither do I believe that he can foist new interests on them with any degree of success. It's his job to find out what his readers really are interested in and then serve those interests to the best of his ability. The minute he forgets he's just a hired man and starts to be a little tin god on wheels, he'll find that he's riding for a fall."

MEMORIAL TO WAR HEROES TO BE DEDICATED IN JUNE

Dedicatory ceremonies connected with the erection by the state of California of a monument to the Californians who gave their lives in the World war, on the California-Nevada boundary line west of Verdi, Nevada, as one of the Victory highway memorials, will be in charge of the American Legion, according to word from the Victory Highway Association.

The dedication will take place in June, according to present plans. Funds for the erection of the granite memorial were provided by the California state legislature.

Californa and Nevada officials will join with the heads of the American Legion in the dedicatory ceremonies.

Upon the huge block there stands a large bronze agle with outspread wings. A bronze plaque insert in the granite will be dedica'ed to the men and women who lost their lives in the great war.

"The Victory highway memorial bronze marker," State Adjutant Fisk of the Legion states in describing the memorial, "is a figure of an American eagle poised above its nest and young with outspread wings in an attitude of defiance, symbolizing that protection which this country gives its people. It was developed under the advice of two of America's leading ornithologists, Dr. Theodore Roberts of the University of Minnesota, and Mr. Otto Wilmann of St. Louis. It is ornithologically correct in every detail, and is said to be possibly the finest American eagle bronze in the United States. Dr. Roberts, who was closely in touch with the sculptor at all times, says 'It is alive.' It has been designated 'The Victory Eagle,' and is protected from misuse by copyright. In wing spread the county line Victory highway eagle markers are five and one-half feet; in height four feet, with a seven foot base, a total height of approximately eleven feet."

Some years ago when Eugene Dieudenne of Paris was sentenced to life imprisonment on Devil's Island he persuaded his wife to secure a divorce in order to escape the humiliation his conviction had brought her. ADVERTISING PROVES HELP TO THE STREET RAILWAYS

The electric railways of the United States now spend $6,000,000 a year in advertising. Ten years ago they spent practically nothing. The advent of competition has brought about the change, a change common to all progressive industries. It has been found that successful business comes from first selling a company's policy to the public.

Because of advertising and modern innovations in service and efficiency, the street railways are becoming more firmly established than ever. The widespread belief of a few years ago that private automobiles and busses had sounded the street car's death knell has proven groundless.

Only a small percentage of any community's working population rides in motor cors. Busses have shown that they cannot compare in efficiency of operation with street railways in handling mass transportation during rush hours.

As an industry, the street railway has in the past few years improved and modernized itself, and the public has responded.

BELL TOLL OPERATORS LOCATE MISSING GIRL

There are 300 cafes in the city of Dallas, but this fact did not deter long distance telephone operators in the Dallas exchange from trying to locate a girl by the name of Guffey for whom a very urgent call had been placed from Kremlin, Oklahoma. Miss Guffey had recently left her home for Dallas and all that was known about her was that she had secured employment in a cafe and that she received her mail at the general delivery window. She had been in Dallas only a week when the telephone call came through, informing her of the sudden death of her father.

In spite of having no address beyond that of the general delivery, three toll supervisors succeeded in locating the girl. First they tried between fifty and seventy-five cafes, but without result, when it occurred to one of the girls that a request might be made to the Dallas News to broadcast the fact that Miss Guffey's relatives wanted her to call Kremlin. This was done, and as a result, Miss Guffey was able to get in touch with her home at 1 A. M., four hours after the attempt to reach her had begun.

RULES TO PREVENT FIRE

Fire Chief Scott, of Lon Angeles, enumerates ten rules for fire prevention which should be followed by every citizen of the great state of California. Their observance will contribute greatly to reducing fire losses to a minimum.

1. Remove all dry grass and weeds from around barns, garages, fences, etc. Never build bonfires on windy days.
2. Burn all oily rags. Do not leave them lying around, as there is danger of spontaneous combustion fire.
3. Remove and dispose of all rubbish and other waste material from the premises.
5. Provide yourself with an approved type of incinerator. That is the only safe way to burn rubbish and other waste materials.
5. Chimneys should be cleaned and examined once each year, especially in using coal or briquettes. Many fires each year are caused by defective chimneys and by sparks flying on shingle roofs.
6. Do not use gasoline to clean garments or gloves in the house. Do that kind of work in the open air away from the fire.
7. Keep an approved fire extinguisher in the house for emergency use. It is better to be safe than sorry.
8. Do not use flexible gas hose to connect gas heaters or stoves. Use solid pipe connections only.
9. Co-operate with the fire department by making your building safe against fire; by removing the cause of fire.
10. Keep in mind the location of the nearest fire alarm box, and memorize the telephone number of the fire department.

LONGEST DIRECT LINE SERVES LOS ANGELES

With the opening of the new direct line from Los Angeles to New York, the longest direct telephone circuit in the world, the city of Los Angeles now has direct circuits connecting with ten other large cities scattered throughout the country. These lines range in length from 500 miles to 3,412 miles, which is the distance a telephone conversation travels on the new circuit between Los Angeles and New York. The other circuits leading out of Los Angeles are to San Francisco, Denver, Seattle, Salt Lake City, Chicago, Dallas, Pheoenix, Tucson and El Paso, beside circuits to nearby cities.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

On a warm day when hot food does not appeal to the appetite, a dish of pressed meat, or a mold of meat or fish in jelly is a most appetizing dish.

Halibut in Tomato Jelly.—Select two medium-sized slices of halibut weighing about a pound each. Season with salt, pepper and lemon juice, then steam until tender—about twelve minutes. Cool and divide into eight fillets, free from skin and bone. To prepare the jelly, cook a quart can of tomatoes for fifteen minutes, add one pint of water, one small onion stuck with four cloves, one teaspoonful of salt and two teaspoonfuls of sugar, one-eighth teaspoonful of thyme, a sprig of parsley, a stalk of celery diced and six peppercorns. Press through a sieve, add one teaspoonful of salt and one-fourth teaspoonful of pepper, four tablespoonfuls of granulated gelatin which has been soaked in one cupful of cold water. Cool and add the whites and shells of two eggs, boil up and strain. Use a shallow mold and pour in a layer of the aspic; chill and when firm arrange on this the eight pieces of fish; pour enough aspic over the fish to hold them in place. Lay strips of pimento between the fish and cover with aspic. When firm fill up the mold and let stand several hours in the ice chest to become firm. When ready to serve, turn onto a platter and garnish with watercress and sliced cucumbers dressed with French dressing. Pass tartar sauce.

Cereal Souffle.—A spoonful or two of cereal, which is so often thrown into the garbage or down the sink drain, will add much to the food value of a dish. To one cupful of thick white sauce add one-half cupful of any leftover cereal. Beat well, add the beaten yolks of two eggs, one-half teaspoonful of salt, a dash of cayenne pepper and one half cupful or more of any seasoned meat or savory as cheese, mushrooms, ham or sweet pepper. Cool, fold in the stiffly beaten whites and bake twenty minutes in a moderate oven.

Lait Cuit.—Put together in a saucepan, one and one-half cupfuls of milk and one-half cupful of cream. Boil the mixture until reduced to one cupful of liquid. Stir in one tablespoonful of sugar and one-eighth teaspoonful of salt. Pour into a glass pitcher and chill before serving. Served with stewed fruit it is a dish of especially fine flavor.

Those who are making new discoveries about foods tell us that when we must cook cabbage, put it in the oven with butter and bake about five minutes at a high temperature and then we will have a food which cooking has not killed of its food elements entirely.

Cakes for Dessert.

A choice cake makes one of the very nicest desserts. The following are a few worth cherishing:

Ohio Sponge Cake.—Boil one and one-half cupfuls of granulated sugar with one-half cupful of water until the sirup spins a long thread, beat the whites of six eggs to a stiff froth, add one-fourth teaspoonful of salt and pour the hot sirup over them very slowly, beating mixture until nearly cold, then set aside. Now beat the yolks of the eggs until thick, add to them the juice of a small lemon with the grated rind, combine the two egg mixtures and fold in one cupful of pastry flour which has been sifted three times before measuring. Bake in a greased and floured angel food pan in a slow oven one and one-fourth hours.

Lemon or Orange Icing.—Boil together two cupfuls of granulated sugar with one-half cupful of water and one-eighth teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Pour the sirup when it has reached the thread stage over the whites of two eggs which have been beaten to the froth stage, only; beat vigorously to a stiff and fluffy mass. Add orange or lemon juice for flavor and beat until right for spreading.

Piccadilly Prune Cake.—Take one-half pound of good prunes steamed until tender, then pitted and chopped coarsely. Sift the following ingredients: Two and one-half cupfuls of flour, one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful each of soda and salt, one-half teaspoonful of nutmeg and cinnamon. Add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar and two eggs well beaten; finally add one-fourth cupful of softened, but not melted butter. Beat well, pour into a well-greased square pan and bake an hour or longer. When the cake is nearly finished, sprinkle with granulated sugar and place at the top of the oven to glaze. Delicious cut warm and served with whipped cream for afternoon tea.

CRUEL BIRDS

All the Mrs. Goshawk birds are even stronger than the Mr. Goshawks.

Goshawks.

They love to fight and destroy creatures even more than their mates do.

They can even capture big animals like hares and they keep them in their clutches so that they cannot escape.

Well, about two or three years ago a great many goshawks made a raid on one section of the country and destroyed any number of little birds as well as many of the little barnyard creatures.

So that when they were seen again in another section of the country, every one got very much excited and said:

"We must get rid of the cruel goshawks.

"Think of the brave mother birds who stand guard outside their nests, thinking not of themselves, or whether they will be hurt, but only trying to protect the little birdlings within the nest.

"Think, too, of the brave daddies who look after the little birds and the mother birds."

So the people spoke and they drove away the goshawks, for the goshawks were really cruel.

But after they were gone people appreciated the robins and the song-sparrows and all the other birds more than ever before.

It was soon after that that a party was given for the robins and the song sparrows.

The party was given by little Bailey. Outside in his yard he had a big scooped-out bark of a tree fastened on the fence.

He had found the big chunk of wood when he had gone for a walk and had brought it home. It had been hollowed by a woodpecker in search of little insects he had heard creeping around inside the wood.

The woodpecker has such good hearing and can hear the insects if they move ever so slightly.

Well, little Bailey now always put bread crumbs in the scooped-out wood.

The birds all gathered around and sang and chirped and had a most glorious meal.

The weather was so nice. The trees were laughing with their new young leaves.

Oh, how the new young leaves did laugh. Everything seemed so jolly and so gay and so merry to them.

People Appreciated the Robins.

The party was a wonderful one and little Bailey kept calling to all the other members of the family, saying:

"Come and see the huge party out in the yard."

There were certainly lots and lots of birds there.

The invitations had simply spread around.

And, in addition to the party, and the beautiful day, how happy all the birds were that no longer were the goshawks around to make their fluttering little lives miserable.

Defer Business Meeting

Royal loves dumb animals and quite frequently brings home a stray cat or dog.

Some time ago he arrived home with a dilapidated looking kitten and knowing his parent would remonstrate at another addition to his adopted cat family, he waived preliminaries aside, insisting, "Give the poor kitty some milk first, mother. Then we'll talk business later."

Why Richard Cried

In the middle of the night, Richard started crying. His mother rushed to his bedroom and asked him what the trouble was.

"I can't think of anything to dream," he replied.

Answer—There is a difference of 20; twice 25 being 50, and twice 5 (10) and 20 making 30.

Decrease in Farm Population Necessary, From an Economic Standpoint

By DR. WALTER BURR, Kansas State Agricultural College.

THE decrease in the population of America's farms is due to sound economic processes, and there is nothing alarming in the situation. The shifting in population is due to the installation of more efficient machinery on the farms, thus lessening the demand for labor.

The decrease in farm population has been necessary from an economic standpoint. When you get rid of the necessity of an average of about 20,000 men in a wheat harvest, then there isn't anything else for the people to do in the country except farm. Of course, in order to have a sound, economic state, a large number of other people will have to get out of the farming area. This is the thing that has been happening in our agricultural area throughout the entire Middle West, and it isn't a thing about which we need feel discouraged.

I have also heard it said that the small town in the Middle West is becoming decadent; that it is being wiped off the map. As a matter of fact, the Rockefeller Institute for Research recently made an extensive study of the small towns of America, and their conclusions were that in the last ten years an added number of towns have been built in America, and that the population of these towns has been increasing.

"Jazz Journalism" Is of the Past; Era of More Intelligent Press Here

By KARL A. BICKEL, United Press Chief.

The era of "jazz journalism" is over and a period of new and enormously more productive and powerful journalism is setting in. New factors of great potency are at work upon the minds of the news consumers of America.

The World war was one of these forces. For the first few years after the war the youth of America wanted, above everything else, to forget the war. But a change is everywhere apparent. Today the man who was overseas is beginning to interpret the news he reads in the American press from abroad in the light of his own experiences with the people he came in contact with while abroad. And he is a new and very definitely interested consumer of foreign information.

The editor no longer has to fear that his newspaper will be too intelligent for his readers. If he is really wise, his fear will be that he won't be able to keep his paper intelligent enough.

The age of the jazz newspaper is over. You can't sell bonds, grand pianos and automobiles in a cabaret—and you can't sell advertised goods in a newspaper permeated with the artificial high-powered, hopped-up atmosphere of the cabaret. When a newspaper reader is seeking primarily amusement, shock, emotional thrill, he is not in the mood to think of purchasing a home or a new pair of shoes.

United States Ahead of England in Offering Opportunity to Young Men

By LORD ROBERT CECIL, English Statesman.

America offers better opportunities than England to the poor young man. We have solved the problem of liberty as well as you, but you have solved the problem of equality better than we have.

If you are well-to-do in England and can afford to wait, practically all careers are open to you. If you are poor, it is a different story, of course. I don't think we have solved in England the question of "open careers" or opportunities for young men as well as you have in the United States. Unlike you, we are a crowded country.

Apart from special circumstances, I am convinced that in the end a man generally does what he desires to do and I believe that is more true in the United States than in England. If with sufficient strength he desires to do a special thing, he will finally accomplish it.

Broadly speaking, there are two objects of desire: To be something: to do something. If you want to be something, for example, a rich man, or President of the United States, or judge of the Supreme court, well, that's one form of life. But if you want to do something, then you must be on your guard as far as you can against caring what you are. You must not bother about what will happen to you. If you would struggle to be things, then you must abandon hope of doing things.

Much Criticism of American School System Not Promotive of Sound Education

By DR. DAVID KINLEY, President University of Illinois.

Criticisms of the "school faults of children" should be directed against parents rather than school teachers. Too often we are inclined to blame the teachers, rather than our children or ourselves, when teachers find it necessary to tell us that our children are not doing as well as they would like.

The fault lies with us or our children, and for that reason we should strive to sympathize with the teachers in their work, especially in their difficulties, and should make it our business to support their policies so far as we can.

There is a good deal of agitation about our school system, our methods of education, the school curriculum, its management, and many other subjects in the field of education. My own study of much of this discussion has led me to the conclusion that most of it is uncritical, irrational, impulsive and subversive, rather than promotive of sound education.

History of Human Race Directly Contradicts the Theory of Evolution

By DR. W. B. RILEY, President Fundamentalist Association.

History reveals the fall of man, and the decay of civilization instead of telling a story of evolution and human progress. The history of the human race reveals the reversal of the theory of evolution. History, the one science dealing with the subject involved in the controversy between the fundamentalists and the evolutionists, favors the story told by the Scriptures.

According to the prophet Daniel, man is degenerating, and governments are going down and civilization will end in catastrophe. According to Darwin, the evolutionist, man is coming up toward the superman, and civilization is improving. I would predict the ultimate failure of human government and the second coming of the Messiah to inaugurate a world kingdom under the reign of the Son of God.

Historic Old Deed in Archives of Virginia

Discovery of the original copy of the birth certificate of Michigan among the musty archives of Virginia at Richmond, was made by Col. John W. Williams, clerk of the Virginia house of delegates.

This document is the original deed by which Virginia conveyed the Northwest territory to the United States. Later the Northwest territory was carved to make Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois.

The deed, handwritten and yellow with age, was discovered in the middle of an ancient volume of papers, one of the many which Colonel Williams has been indexing for years. It bears the signature of Thomas Jefferson, Samuel Hardy, Arthur Lee and James Monroe, "delegates for the commonwealth in the congress of the United States."

Probably the most remarkable feature of the ancient document is Virginia's stipuation that the states to be carved from the territory must be "distinct Republican states," limited in size to be not more than 150 or less than 100 miles square.—Detroit News.

London Jeweler Has Czar's Art Treasures

Eighty wonderful objects of art in gold and precious stones and enamel, formerly belonging to the czar's family, are now in the strong rooms of a London jeweler. These treasures, bought from the Soviet government, are valued at $500,000. They were made by M. Faberge, famous Russian court jeweler, who is on parole so that he may serve as expert appraiser for the Soviets. Among the articles in the collection are a clock in diamonds and enamel from the private boudoir of the late czarina, jewel casket decorated in fine gold and aquamarine, sedan chair which belonged to Catherine I and showing her robed and seated within (she is carried by two black chairmen made of gold, and when wound up this piece moves automatically), figure of Buddha carved from the largest known piece of emerald, hand mirror crusted with diamonds, rubies and sapphires, and with a back of solid turquoise, given by the shah of Persia to the late czar.

Aeronautics Aids Windmills

Aeronautics, after adapting the windmill to its own purpose, is returning it to the farmer greatly improved as a result of the intensive research made by the aircraft industry. Changes in the number of blades and the pitch of propellers used to drive electric generators on airplanes at the army laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, have resulted in a new type of wheel for ordinary windmills. This, says the Popular Science Magazine, increases the speed of revolution from six to ten times that of the old-fashioned wheel.

Ambitious Fence Post

The most ambitious fence post in the world is probably on a Pennsylvania farm. It has grown into a tree!

The Farm Journal, which publishes a photograph of the freak, recounts that the fence was built in 1878 of new catalpa timbers. The other posts remained as dead as fence posts should, but this one put down shoots and attained a height of six feet within a year. Today it is 40 feet high, with a spread of 45 feet.

AIR RECORD BREAKING

So rapidly are new air records being made that it is difficult to keep pace with them. Before a magazine article recounting some wonderful feat has gotten into print, a still more wonderful one is told by the newspapers.

The few months of 1928 already past have seen Halderman and Stinson bring back to America the endurance air record with a continuous flight of 53½ hours. While this was going on, Major de Bernardi of Italy was smashing the speed record, in four flights over a 10-kilometer course at average speed of 318½ miles an hour. Kinkler flew from London to Australia alone in a light plane of low horsepower in fifteen hops covering fifteen days without a mishap, setting a new record.

The great feat of Koehl, von Huenfield and Fitzmaurice, two Germans and an Irishman, has caused the world to resound with their fame as the first to make the westward trans-Atlantic flight in an airplane. And there are many others who have accomplished thrilling feats in the air.

But Lindbergh holds a record that is still unique in two respects. He is the only person to fly across the Atlantic alone, and the only one to cross it in an airplane who picked his exact destination in advance and landed there without a stop. Someone may duplicate his feat some day, but his record has stood for a year—and that is a long time in these days of new records overnight.

TOURISTS IN CANADA

In a recent speech in Vancouver, the Hon. William Phillips, United States minister to Canada, made the rather surprising statement that American tourists spent about $260,000,000 in the Dominion last year. He predicted that this amount may be doubled in the next ten years, and lauded the scenic beauties and other attractions of Canada, which he termed "a giant Switzerland," with an all the year appeal for those who seek the joys of outdoor life.

There is no doubt that thousands of Americans who now spend much time in Europe would devote more attention to Canada if its attractions were better known througbout the states. And in increased intermingling of the two populations would tend to still more strongly cement the traditional friendship between them.

But the average American does not need to go to Canada to find scenic beauties of which he has never had the faintest conception. There are so many places in the Western states they probably have not yet seen, that deserve their acquaintance, that it would pay them to become better acquainted before venturing across the border on the hunt for scenic beauties.

TRAINING A DAUGHTER

Among the replies received in response to a request for a brief plan for training a daughter, a magazine received the following from a successful mother:

Teach your daughter to value a man, not by wealth, looks or family, but by his character and what he himself has done.

Discourage her in looking upon men as suitors until she is at least 18.

Give her an education and keep her employed part of the time during vacation.

Make her home pleasant, so that she will not be anxious to leave it for an inferior one.

Encourage her to attend church, Sunday school, club meetings and other places where the right kind of people may be met, urging her to be particularly careful in choosing her girl associates.

These are all excellent suggestions, even though they do not always secure the desired results, and the mother who follows them will have done about all that is possible to do for her daughter.

BOYS AND SCIENCE

Boys of the present generation are popularly supposed to be rather wild, just as girls and older folks are supposed to be. To hear the pessimists tell it, nearly everybody is on the down grade.

This being quite a widespread, but mistaken belief, it is reassuring to read a bit of news from Odenville, in the state of Alabama, where the boys of the St. Clair high school have organized the Lindbergh Science Club. Its object is stated by the boys to be "to develop more interest in science and actually prove it by experiments." The members pay a small monthly fee for the purchase of apparatus and books. Meetings are held weekly.

This is certainly a fine idea, worthy of wide imitation. And it shows that all boys are not thinking exclusively of jazz and its modern accompaniments. The boys of today, in our opinion, will measure up to the boys of any period in our history.

NEW MEDICAL ADVANCE

After years of research and experimenting, Dr. Burr Ferguson, of Birmingham, Alabama, is credited with one of the most important of recent medical discoveries. It is a method of increasing the white blood cells, which are said to attack and destroy the germs of practically all infectious diseases.

Dr. Ferguson's reports to the medical profession of many cures through his method have attracted attention both in America and England, one high authority declaring that the results obtained indicate a discovery equal in importance to that of insulin.

Metchinkoff, a famous Russian scientist, in 1884 propounded the theory that the white blood cells were the enemies of infectious germs. Now, forty-four years later, Dr. Ferguson appears to have perfected a method of increasing these protective cells in sufficient quantities to combat the germs with practical results.

The new method consists of the injection of certain metallic substances and foreign proteins into the muscles and blood.

Should Dr. Ferguson's discovery prove to be what he and his supporters claim for it, another powerful weapon will have been added to man's armament against disease.

AUTO PRODUCTION

Production of automobiles and trucks in the United States during 1927 was approximately 20 per cent below that of 1926, due principally to the curtailment of the Ford plant in preparation for the new model.

Even with this reduction the United States produced last year 81.6 per cent of the world's output, followed by England with 5.5 per cent, France with 4.6 per cent, Canada with 4.3 per cent, and all other countries combined only 4 per cent.

Automobiles ranked third among all United States exports, the greatest number going to any single country being taken by Australia. Cotton and petroleum were the only products exceeding automobiles in export value. Only 635 motor vehicles were imported during the year.

California and Kansas have one car for each three persons, having the highest percentage according to population. Alabama and Georgia have the lowest, with one car for each twelve persons. The total number of motor vehicles in use in the United States at the end of 1927 was 23,127,315, and the industry ranked first in the total value of its output, with meat packing second, steel third, petroleum fourth, and printing and publishing fifth.

The number of motor vehicles in use today is four times as great as that of only ten years ago. And we thought we had some automobiles in 1918.

An exchange confides that the average cow can swim 100 yards in one minute and thirty-eight seconds. Which may be a useful bit of information to any of its readers who are prone to make wagers on swimming cows.

Mayor Mackey says Philadelphia has greater wealth per capita than any other city. Perhaps they may some day be rich enough to afford another Sesqui-Centennial.

The flood control bill is finally enacted. Now if the Father of Waters is tempted to go on a spree, he may know there is a law against it.

Come to think of it, there is some slight ground for the proposed exemption of the American Indian from the immigration quota.

A sanitary engineer declares that poor ventilation of the capitol at Washington tends to "detract from the physical and mental abilities" of members of Congress. Which ought to furnish a fairly good alibi for some of them.

CURBING ACTIVITIES OF THE AUTOMOBILE THIEF

Border patrol and information stations established recently by the Division of Motor Vehicles in Southern California are doing much to curb the activities of the automobile thief, according to Acting Chief Inspector George F. Moynahan.

Reports received by Moynahan show dozens of cars, abandoned by thieves who fear to pass the stations with them, have been recovered within the few months the stations have been operating.

The success of the venture is so apparent that Chief Frank G. Snook is making plans to extend the system to cover all arterial highways leading in and out of the state.

Stations are now being operated at Blythe, Daggett and Yuma. It is the hope of the division to establish one on the Pacific highway, another on the Redwood highway, one on the Susanville-Reno road, one on the Truckee highway and possibly one in the Owens Valley country.

Moynahan said the patrol forces would probably be expanded so that every car in and out of the state could be checked. Numbers and descriptions of stolen cars will be forwarded to these stations daily.

At Yuma, Inspector A. B. Crane was informed by Sheriff Chappell of Yuma county, Arizona, that he now recovers few California stolen cars, although he recovered an average of six a week before the station was established.

At the same station, Officer C. C. Chapman recently arrested a man wanted for counterfeiting after receiving word from the police giving a description of the man and his car. Moynahan added that many other kinds of crime are being controlled by the stations, although their primary purpose is to give information to incoming tourists concerning California motoring laws and registration regulations.

It is estimated that the southern stations have given information to more than 40,000 tourists since they were established. Visitors permits, giving the visitors the right to remain six months in the state without securing a California license, are issued by the border patrolmen.

THE RETURN OF ANTHONY TRENT

By
WYNDHAM MARTYN

STORY FROM THE START

Anthony Trent returns to New York after nearly four years' absence. Once known as the master criminal, Trent is going straight. The purser accuses Trent of jumping overboard from the Poitiania at Liverpool, but is disappointed when Trent shows no surprise. He learns his friend, Capt. Frank Sutton, is in Sing Sing. At New York Trent is startled to find somebody occupying his house. The stranger is Sutton Campbell, the brother of his best friend, who is serving ten years in prison. Trent is asked by Campbell Sutton to force Payson Grant to a written confession, having crookedly obtained all of Captain Sutton's possessions and later married his wife. Trent, after long hesitation, consents. Trent starts on a campaign to accomplish the downfall of Payson Grant. He learns from an old friend, Clarke, that Captain Sutton has escaped from Sing Sing.

"It must have happened while I was crossing," he said slowly. "I have seen no reference to it in any of the papers. How did he make his break?"

"Brains, my boy," said Clarke. "I didn't think his conventional sort had it in him. He decided to go on a hunger strike. He asked permission to see the Head Nut of a society of bugs who live on one fruit meal a day. The Exalted Supreme Nut came to Sing Sing to explain his theories gladly. Sutton could not believe that a man would be strong on such a diet. He got the Chief Knight of Nutdom to strip and show that he had blood and sinew and muscle. Then your pal Sutton, upper-cut him, got into his abandoned clothes, passed out in them and escaped."

"Sutton did that?" Trent laughed. It was the type of exploit he enjoyed. "Two weeks's start is pretty useful."

"They'll get him," Clarke declared. "They'll get him because they'll know where to look for him. He's after Payson Grant, and Grant isn't sleeping well at night, believe me. Sutton's watching his opportunity."

"Know anything about his brother Campbell?"

"Not a thing. Do you?"

"Slightly. He's a college professor type, with a nasty little mincing way of talking, and a nose that stands away from flabby, yellow cheeks at an impossible angle." Trent reflected. "And yet there is something—I suppose it's a family trait—that reminds me of his brother. I'm going to see him tonight." Trent's face was grim. "I think I shall tell him I'm through."

Trent could not leave without a long talk with Mrs. Sauer, and he did not reach his apartment until dusk, but it had been a profitable afternoon.

The fragrance of his special brand of cigar greeted him. Campbell Sutton looked up from a book.

"Did you bring an evening paper?" he asked.

"No," said Trent. "I have been too much occupied to think of it. I went through that interesting pile of stone which the world calls Sing Sing."

Campbell Sutton put his book down. "After what I told you?"

"In spite of it. You will find that I do not take orders readily. Your brother was glad to see me. He sent his love to you. He apologized for your manners, and said you were one of those uncomfortable creatures who meant well."

Campbell Sutton considered the matter before answering. "Of course you didn't see my brother," he said. "He isn't there."

"He will be before long. According to the Evening World he has been arrested in Wilmington."

Although Trent's keen eyes were on the other's face there was no alarm or anxiety to be seen. Instead Campbell Sutton smiled.

"That I will never believe," he said. "My brother is hidden where none will dream of seeking him, and it is nowhere near any of the Wilming tons."

"Why did you deceive me?"

"I felt I had to. Regard it as a precautionary measure, Mr. Trent. Captain Sutton depends wholly on your courage and energy. Do not let him suffer for excess of caution on his brother's part."

"Where is he?" Trent asked.

"For the moment I dare not tell you." Campbell Sutton meditated a little. "Perhaps when you have made your plans a meeting may be arranged. I will bring it about."

"If he isn't captured meanwhile," Trent answered.

"That wouldn't relieve you of your adventures."

"I wasn't thinking of that," Trent said. "The police will look for him at Deal Beach if Grant is still there. The vendetta idea, you understand?"

"They will look in vain," Campbell Sutton retorted. "That is the last place he would choose. My brother did not escape with the idea of murdering Payson Grant. Frank knows very well that by himself he has no chance to force Payson to confess the embezzlement charge was false. He knows that Payson will never admit to him that the revolver found on Frank was deliberately placed there by him or his hirelings."

"And he thinks I shall be able to discover proofs of an organized conspiracy?" Trent said, a little bitterness in his tone.

"Not exactly that. You are needed for subtler work than that. My brother thinks a man of your unusual abilities should be able to get Payson Grant into such a position that a full confession could be forced from him."

"It will be the hardest job I've ever tackled."

Campbell Sutton smiled a little as he glanced at Anthony Trent. Gone was the look of smoldering anger from that keen face. He was losing sight of the unwelcome task thrust upon him in the contemplation of its fascinating dangers. The old adventurous spirit was awakening. Anthony Trent versus Payson Grant et al. For the first time the incident held in triguing possibilities.

"I think I shall go down to Deal for a few days," he asserted. "I'm still a member of the golf club, so it will not be going as a stranger. I may run across Grant there, as you tell me he plays."

"It won't be easy to meet him," Campbell Sutton declared. "He is essentially a snob. To enter his house as a guest you would have either to be one of his old friends or one of his new acquaintances. You cannot be any of the old crowd. One of the reasons Mrs. Grant married Payson is that he is better adapted for social climbing than my brother. To get into her good graces you would need to be well introduced. This social struggle is a professional sport with all the little underhanded tricks that creep into professional games."

"I've seen it played more than you imagine," Trent returned, "and I know more prominent members of high society than your friend Payson

"If He Isn't Captured Meanwhile," Trent Answered.

Grant does. It happened that when I was in England I fell by accident into what was the 'top-hole' set. I met dukes and marquises, earls and cabinet ministers. I met Americans whose names had been household words to me, and found them all marquises and millionaires, some of the nicest men I'd ever struck."

Anthony Trent mentioned the names of families which plainly impressed his listener.

"It seems incredible," Campbell Sutton murmured. "I'm sure my brother had no idea you were a society man."

"I'm not," said Trent promptly. "I tell you it was all unpremeditated. I've never had social ambitions. When our ambassador told me there were prominent Americans gnashing their teeth because I—who wasn't even in the Social Register—was mixing with the titled throng and actually staying in an earl's castle, I was amused."

"I'd like to hear about it," said Campbell Sutton.

"That you most certainly will not do," Trent said decisively, his face hardening. Nothing could have induced him to tell this man, whose personality jarred upon him, of those entrancing days now so remote and alien. They were days when Anthony Trent felt himself safe and had known supreme happiness. There were memories which came thronging, fragrant, tender and too sacred to share. He felt, in that moment, he had said more than he need.

"If what you claim is borne out by facts, it would make a meeting with Payson Grant less difficult than I imagined."

"I am making no claims," Trent said coldly.

"Mrs. Grant is always on the lookout for clever and entertaining men. I have never looked upon you as possessing social talents, but there's no reason why you should not."

"Thanks," Trent said acidly.

Campbell Sutton was smiling. An idea had amused him.

"If you should be recognized by any of your former victims while a guest of the Grants, you would wound them incurably."

"You are certainly kind and thoughtful," Trent exclaimed.

The idea was disquieting. The adventure seemed to be growing in difficulty. It would be an ironic ending if, in the moment of victory, as yet highly problematic, this man denounced him. Trent did not think he had a normally minded man to deal with. Perhaps Campbell Sutton guessed of what he was thinking.

"I wish I dare tell you everything," said Sutton. He looked at the other man and seemed as though about to impart some hidden thing.

"I am not anxious to know more than I do," Trent said, rising to his feet.

"Some day you will understand," said Campbell Sutton. His aggressive manner was gone. "My experience with men has not allowed me to take anyone on trust."

* * * * * * *

Although Trent was up at half-past seven next morning, Campbell Sutton had finished his breakfast and was reading the papers his host had brought in the previous evening.

At half-past eight the buzzer in the passage rang three times.

"If you don't want to be seen," Trent said, coming into the front room, "you'd better go aft."

"Who is it?" the other demanded, betraying visible agitation.

"How do I know?" Trent snapped. "I don't claim second sight."

"You can't know till you've opened the door," Sutton whispered, "and then it may be too late."

"I don't open the door till I know," Trent told him.

Long ago he had made a little peephole through which a view of visitors could be obtained. He sighed with relief when he beheld only David More.

"It's a friend," he said, "but you'd better not be seen."

More handed his report to his employer, but would not sit down, as he was in a hurry.

Trent sat down in the chair so recently vacated by Campbell Sutton and read More's reports. His attempts to get information at Sutton's former office had resulted only in finding that all the old staff was dismissed. Those who remained were Grant men, convinced their employer was in the right.

Trent read the document through twice. Those who knew him well might have judged that what he had perused had awakened him to anger. His mouth was a thin line and his eyes had no longer any good humor about them.

He put the envelope in his pocket and then set about what seemed a curious and unnecessary rearrangement of the furniture, dragging back the comfortable chairs so that the center of the room was left bare but for a Royal Bokhara rug of unusual size.

Campbell Sutton came in just as he had finished.

"What are you doing?" he asked in astonishment.

"I'm setting the stage," Trent explained.

"For what purpose?"

"I think you'll regard it as a tragedy."

"I don't know what you mean."

"You will," said Trent, coming closer. "It's simply this: I was willing for two reasons to run the risk attendant on helping your brother. One was that you threatened to denounce me to the police if I did not; the other was because I liked Sutton and owed him a great deal."

"Those two reasons still exist," Sutton reminded him.

"But you don't." Trent had a dangerous, sneering laugh. "Put up your hands, man, for I'm going to hit you. Captain Sutton never had a brother or sister, and you're nothing but a d—d fake."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Set Little Brother in the Straight Path

A young Washingtonian gave an exemplification of a different sort of Christianity recently—one that was reminiscent of religion as it used to be applied. Perhaps the youth of nations was no different from the youth of a man. I believe there is a theory to that effect.

Anyway, this small boy was left in charge of his smaller brother while his parents went to the theater. When they came home they discovered a tear-stained Jimmie in bed and a sorrowful Bobby watching over him.

"Why, Bob," asked the mother "what is the matter?"

"I hit Jimmie," replied Robert.

"You hit Jimmie!" cried the horrified mother.

"Yes, and I kicked him, too," truthfully replied Bobbie.

"W y, what on earth did brother do?" the mother asked.

Bobbie looked very righteous.

"He wouldn't say his prayers. But I made him."—Washington Star.

"Cove Oysters"

Before a system had been developed for the safe transportation of fresh oysters to remote parts of the country, a method was devised of steaming the bivalves and packing them in hermetically sealed, or airtight, cans. These are known as "cove oysters," and are popular even where fresh oysters can be had.

MILTON GASTON HAS FORK BALL

So Extreme That Backstop Cannot Hold Onto It.

There is such a thing as getting too much on the ball.

Milton Gaston illustrates the point. He has a fork ball that is reputed to be the best of its kind baseball has known.

But the fork ball is so good that it really counts against Gaston, writes H. G. Salinger in the Detroit News.

It is so extreme that he cannot use it effectively.

While Gaston was on the pay roll of the St. Louis Browns he was pitching in a game against the New York Yankees. They filled bases with none out.

Gaston cut loose with the "forker." The ball broke over the plate but it broke so sharply that it got away from Hargrave, who was catching.

When Hargrave recovered the ball, in front of the grandstand, New York had two men on bases and one strike on the batter.

Gaston delivered another fork ball. This one also broke over the plate but got away from Hargrave. When he recovered it New York had one man on the bases and two strikes on the batter.

Hargrave asked for time, walked to the pitcher's box and said to Gaston: "Say, Bill, don't you think you and I could get along just as well today without using that forker again?"

Gaston resorted to the fast ball, omitted the work ball, and retired the next three batters.

No delivery is good unless it can be handled by the catcher.

No catcher has ever successfully handled Gaston's fork ball.

When it breaks no catcher can guess what direction it will take.

The ball may break down, in or out.

It breaks so unexpectedly that the catcher cannot shift quickly enough to receive it.

Sometimes it does not break and then it is the simplest of all deliveries.

That is the danger of the delivery when used in a pinch. It does not always break and when it fails it frequently means the loss of a game.

Gaston's fast ball is said to be the best in the league today. He will probably rely chiefly on that in the future.

Swimming Champion

The photo shows Andrew Charlton, Australia's swimming champion, who will make a big effort to beat Arne Borg in the 1,500 meters swim at Amsterdam. He is also a 400 meters aspirant and hopes to defeat Johnny Weismuller in this event. His best time for 400 yards is 4 minutes 59 4-5 seconds.

CALIFORNIA NEWS BRIEFS

California's public schools cost her $143,819,221.15 last year. Reports to the state made by county superintendents show that kindergartens cost $3,605,842, elementary schools, $76,692,515.17, and high schools $63,520,863.62.

Sheriffs in California are not entitled to any profit from the sums allotted by the county for feeding prisoners in the county jails, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General U. S. Webb to Elmer W. Heald, district attorney of Imperial county. Heald stated that Sheriff Gillett is allotted 20 cents per meal per prisoner and that a grand jury investigation found he was feeding the prisoners on a less sum.

A California barber must be an educated man, at least to the extent of an eighth grade schooling, R. L. Chamberlain, deputy attorney general, has informed the State Board of Barbers' Examiners. No barber "college" can be accredited which does not insist upon this prerequisite, nor can any barber from another state practice his trade without being thus qualified for his license. The board was also told barber shops must be partitioned off from other places of business, whatever their condition, before the law was passed.

The formation of an organization of Sacramento Valley landowners to confer with the state authorities on an equitable distribution of flood control costs between the landowners and the state was urged last week by Robert T. Devlin, attorney for a number of reclamation districts and prominently identified for years with flood control matters. Pointing out that the federal government is now ready to do its share through the adoption of legislation increasing its contribution to Sacramento river flood control works from $5,600,000 to $17,600,000, Devlin declared the state should now do its share by paying the entire cost of flood control.

Relief measures for the great army of California's adult blind are now being prepared for submisison to the state legislature which convenes next January, it was learned recently. Success of the bill providing aid for crippled children at the 1927 session is taken to augur well for the new aid-for-the-blind program. The greatest statewide movement in history is under way to ascertain the type of legislation most needed, according to Mrs. Anna L. Saylor, director of the department of social welfare.

The United States government has made an appropriation of about $190,000 yearly for experiments on behalf of forest conservation in California. This national assistance comes through the passage of the McNary-McSweeney Forest Research bill, in the House of Representatives last week. President Coolidge is expected to sign the bill, as he has already "clear listed" it. Officials of the California Development Association are jubilant over this victory which they have worked hard to secure. The federal endowment is made to this organization, and is the seal of approval of the activities undertaken and carried out by the California Development Association and the State Chamber of Commerce.

Beginning of a state wide campaign to secure a narcotic isolation farm in California was announced in San Francisco last week. The Narcotic Research Association, a state-wide organization, will direct the campaign. The object of the association is to gain the approval of the Legislature for an appropriation large enough to establish a farm on a scale to accommodate 1,500 addicts. Either an island or a desert will be urged as a site, it was announced. The time has come, directors of the association declared in an official statement, to change the policy "of trying to legislate and control by police measures drug addiction, which is primarily a medical question."

If private Capital is called in to finanace California's proposed $358,000,000 water development program, franchises and contracts affecting construction of the various power and irrigation dams must safeguard the interests of ultimate public ownership at all times. That attitude was plainly reflected by Alexander R. Heron, director of finance and state administration leader, in a statement declaring that sale of power is conceded to be the most logical means of paying for suggested units in the statewide water plan. The elaborate series of reservoirs, canals and pumping plants brought to the attention of the last legislature for greater storage and distribution of California water resources is being studied by the legislative water committee.

With the addition of thirteen more men who were sent out from San Quentin to prison road camps last week, the total number in the various camps is now 428. With the exception of four years ago, this is the largest number of men who have been in the prison road camps in the history of the penitentiary. It is planned to increase the number to approximately 1,000 before the summer is over, and this will greatly alleviate the present congested condition within the prison walls. The total number of inmates, both men and women, is now 4,321, the largest number ever recorded.

JUNIORS ENTERTAIN THE OUTGOING CLASS

The most elaborate entertainment yet attempted by the Jefferson Union high school was that tendered the outgoing class by the Juniors, Tuesday evening, at the Bellevue Hotel.

Besides the class of '28, the honor guests were Principal James Ferguson the two Senior advisors, Wm. Van Houte and Miss Effie Potter, the two Junior advisors, George E. Miller and Miss Dorothy Staib, the Board of Trustees, T. Bentley, A. Gehringer, Mrs. Stella Jensen, Mrs. Lila Brown and L. Starke. Others enjoying the hospitality of the Juniors were Mrs. G. E. Miller, Mrs. G. Gehringer, Mrs. Bentley, Mr. Mattrup Jensen and Mr. J. Brown.

The class colors, red and white, were carried out in an especially artistic manner in the table decorations, being garlands of red roses, combined with tall crystal urns of feathery white flowers.

Louis Anderson was chosen by the Juniors to act for them as the host, and his ready flow of wit and close acquaintanceship with the light as well as serious phases of school activities, proved it a wise choice.

Paul Williams, Junior class president, was first called upon and responded with a poem in which he foretold the great heights to which the members of '28 were to rise. He was followed by the Senior President, William Jost, who expressed sorrow that the old association was soon to be just one of the happy memories, and promised for his classmates that the brilliant future predicted should be fulfilled.

Besides these speakers, Principal James Ferguson, T. Bentley, Wm. Van Houte and George Miller were called upon and responded with appropriate remarks.

Miss Mabel Vireno favored with two beautifully rendered solos, accompanied at the piano by Miss Staib. Other music enjoyed was two banjo duets by Charles Pilgrim and Albert Ennis.

The dance music was furnished by Stan's Collegians.

Miss Potter and Mr. Van Houte were preesnted with tokens of appreciation by the class of '29, and Paul Williams, on behalf of the Junior class, presented Miss Staib with a gold pen and pencil upon which her initials were engraved.

The members of the class honored were: Oriel Fischer, Josephine Jensen, Henrietta McKeown, Marcella Savage, Margaret Twesten, Mae Varni, Cleon Abbott, Chas. Aiello, Arthur Drucker, Albert Hansen, Ralph Johnson, Norman Kennedy, Francis Koskinen, Chester McGrath, Morris Plansky, Joseph Rachetta, Ralph Riches, Fred Rohl, Paul Passaglia, Clark Williams, Jack Sanderson.
